

Fractal structuring of life's problems

(course is being updated)

Currently, this is the final course elective. It contains the knowledge and skills of mastering the previous courses, when experienced listeners gain the ability and opportunity to fractally structure large-scale life problems. These are personnel issues of large-scale production, management issues, running a large-scale business, the possibility of optimal solutions to emergency situations and circumstances.

